

HITLER CONFERS WITH CHIEFS ON NAZIS' FUTURE

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press War Analyst)
As seven Allied armies continue to surge out of the Rhineland towards the heart of Germany, Fuehrer Hitler is reported to have summoned the Nazi Gauleiters to his Alpine fastness at Berchtesgaden to consider the situation in the light of the disaster which is rapidly engulfing the Reich.
The decisions of that meeting may be momentous. It seems obvious that both surrender and continued resistance are being considered. Thus far there has been no sign that the dictator has abandoned his determination to fight to a finish.
Hitler's scheme for saving his own skin and for perpetuating Nazism—both condemned to liquidation by the Allies—is so grotesque as to challenge imagination. His program, as it comes to us via the Swiss press, is based on the theory that Allied victory (which he now admits is certain) will be followed by European chaos. This will be caused by "unrestrained appetites for power," and "social unrest and cruel civil wars." He also figures on a split among the Allied powers.

To Wait For Chaos
The Nazi chief is said to have completed preparations to hole-up in the fortified salt-mines and other defenses of the Berchtesgaden area. There, with picked Nazi elite troops which he already is calling in, he will make a stand against the Allies until the predicted chaos provides soil in which Nazism can again be planted. Thus Germany and Hitlerism will come into their own again.
Well, of course, we must recognize at once that there will be grave disorganization in Europe. As a matter of fact there's chaos now, for Hitler has disrupted virtually the whole continent. Already there has been civil strife—and there will be more, due to social and political problems.

However, the Allies have safeguards to keep the situation from getting out of hand. Already they've laid their plans not only for maintenance of order but for regeneration of the stricken nations. Hitler should remember (and probably does) that when the war ends the Allies will have in Europe millions of troops. This means there will be ample armed strength to deal with any untoward events. There can be no general upheaval.

Betrays Own People
Hitler's idea of a split among the Big Three is out. If there's one thing America, Russia and Britain have firmly fixed in their minds it is that so long as we stand together there will be peace, and if we quarrel there will be another World War. We will have our differences of opinion—but we aren't going to fight.
One of Europe's gravest dangers lies in the scarcity of food throughout much of the continent, for hunger is one of the greatest breeders of unrest. Hitler well recognizes this, for he is said to have issued orders to his picked troops to lay waste to the country as they retreat in the north toward the Alpine fortress. He has adopted this inhuman scheme to try to cause revolt against the Allies by starvation of his own people.

Western Front

perhaps the most decisive breakout of the whole campaign.
Gains were immense on the whole active 175-mile front. The Germans were bewildered and, in large part, disorganized. Security blackout hid the full extent of the triumphs.

However, fragmentary reports have disclosed that Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's tanks have clanked to within 235 miles of Berlin and 250 miles of the Russian lines.

The Germans said the Third Army had fought into the streets of Offenbach, an important Main river manufacturing city of 80,000, five miles east of Frankfurt. Frankfurt itself was hopelessly outflanked and besieged—and perhaps evacuated.

7th Crossing Site Secret

Progress of the First Army east of Bonn and below the Ruhr's southern limits was swift and largely censored to keep the Germans confused. Even the size of Lt. Gen. Courtney Hodges' striking force was obscure. The fact that censors allowed it to be described as the largest tank force ever used in the west meant that a minimum of five tank divisions were powering the drive—last reported 247 miles from Berlin—because Patton used four tank divisions in the Moselle campaign.

Where the Seventh Army crossed the Rhine was a secret, too. The Germans reported street fighting outside Karlsruhe, capital of Baden, five miles east of the river.

Only the French First and new U. S. 15th Army have not yet been reported across the Rhine.

Washington, March 27 (AP)—Allied occupation of Germany for the next 60 years was asked in the House by Rep. Snyder (D., Pa.), chairman of the Army Appropriations sub-committee. Flood's suggestion, made in an interview, carried a step further proposals now before the House Foreign Affairs Committee growing out of dissatisfaction with operations of the Allied War Crimes Commission. One of these, a resolution by Rep. Celler (D-NY) proposes creation of a Presidential Commission to define American policy regarding war criminals.

Talk yesterday in the committee of amending this proposal to make that a congressional rather than a presidential agency was followed today by Flood's specific recommendations as to its membership. Flood is a member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

PATTON LAUDS YANKEE TANKS

Washington, March 27 (AP)—Lt. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., has fired a high-velocity volley of words and figures at "certain misguided or perhaps deliberately mendacious individuals" who criticize American tanks.

The War Department made public today a letter from the Third Army commander to Lt. Gen. Thomas T. Handy, deputy chief of staff, in which Patton said "it has been stated at home" that American tanks are not comparable with the German Panther or Tiger tanks. This, said Patton, "is wholly incorrect for several reasons."

One he cited is that since the Third Army started fighting the Germans last August German tank losses have been virtually double those of the Third—2,287 to 1,136.

"These figures of themselves refute any inferiority of our tanks," Patton wrote, "but let me add that the Third Army has always attacked, and therefore better than 70 per cent of our tank casualties have occurred from dug-in anti-tank guns and not enemy tanks, whereas a majority of the enemy tanks put out have been put out by our tanks."

Bingo Loses Fight In Legislature

Harrisburg, March 27 (AP)—Proponents of bingo lost another legislative fight last night to legalize the game.

The House voted down 100-93 a bill authorizing county courts to permit operation of games by fraternal, veteran and church organizations.

Chairman A. H. Letzler, (R-Clearfield), of the Senate Law and Order Committee, which is considering a similar measure, declared at the same time "a bingo bill is out as far as I am concerned. I think the committee will feel the same way."

Vigorous debate preceded the House vote. Republicans and Democrats talked for and against the proposal, sponsored by George P. Dougherty, (R-Delaware).

The complete motion as passed by the board was as follows: "Be it adopted that the county Board of School Directors recommend to all local boards of Adams county that in order to prevent the interference with the prosecution of the war effort in continuing their schools in session for 180 days, we herein recommend that all local school boards should reduce their time to 170 days in accordance with the provisions of Clause C, section 401 A, Pennsylvania school laws." Leaves From Diary Of War Correspondent

(In this war, as in none before, American newspaper correspondents have accompanied the soldiers to the farthest fronts, reporting for the folks at home the heroism and the hardships. Here the tables are turned, and a hero tells of the reporter who wrote about him.)

By GEORGE MACKIE

(Substituting for Hal Boyle)

New Haven, Conn., March 22 (AP)—The first time Cpl. Joseph Martino ever saw Hal Boyle, Associated Press front line columnist, he knew he must be a newspaperman even though he didn't look like one.

"I saw this fellow with his head stuck up over a hedgerow," recalled Martino, who obtained wide acclaim when one of Boyle's columns last fall described how he single-handedly killed or captured some 20-odd Germans in France.

"I went over to him and I said 'Keep your head down if you want to live,' related Martino in telling of his first encounter with Boyle, "and he turns around to me and says 'Whose life is it—yours or mine?'"

"So I told him 'If you want to commit suicide, go ahead.' That's how I knew he was a reporter."

"Just Like a GI"

Martino, telling about Boyle while spending a furlough at his home here, called the Missouri newspaperman "a rough customer."

"Up front he was always dirty, just like a GI," Martino said. "He looked a lot more like a GI than a bloodhound."

"That's what we called the reporters—bloodhounds," Martino explained. "When they showed up, everybody would holler 'Well, who's going to be a hero today?'"

Martino, a big, "rough customer" himself, was a truck driver in civilian life and knows little about the newspaper business except from a few contacts with war reporters, but he has supreme confidence in anything Boyle writes and says the other men in his outfit do too.

"When we would read a story by Boyle we'd know it must be the goods, because he must have seen what happened himself," the artillery corporal explained.

"He's Got His Story"

"That Boyle always went in with the first assault," Martino exclaimed. "You can't stop him from doing anything he wants or from going anywhere he wants, but he knows enough not to do anything that would give our position away."

"Every once in a while you'd see him walk away whistling and somebody would say 'There he goes. He's happy. He's got his story.'"

Martino, more concerned about how the war is fought than how it is described, says "Boyle ought to be an infantryman. He'd make a swell soldier. A man that's been in the front lines six months is an old-timer, and look at how much longer Boyle's been up there. Why, he looks so much like a GI that one day a sergeant asked him where the hell his rifle was." (Boyle landed with General Patton's troops in Africa in November, 1942, and has been in the front lines ever since with the exception of two short home leaves).

The story Boyle wrote about Martino told how the 25-year-old corporal started out to pick up some tomatoes from a patch in no man's land and ended up by knocking out a flank gun and two machine guns and killing or capturing more than two score Germans. He never did

It Shall Happen Here!

He was an office boy, before the war, in Schenley's Cincinnati offices. Now he is a lieutenant in the Army. He expects to come back to Schenley, after the job in which he is presently engaged is finished.

But you can wager all the tea that was in China, that he won't come back as an office boy. This young man has learned something. His Army experience has given him a post-graduate course, and both he and we are going to take advantage of the undoubted, new qualifications he possesses.

Yes, you will find him back at Schenley—soon, we hope. And when he comes back he will be tested for vocational aptitude, and then placed in a position where he can be happiest and where he can continue to expand.

Certainly in the past three or four years there has been a growing pessimism and discouragement regarding human progress. But of late we have visited with top managements in a number of important American industries and it is refreshing and encouraging to find that almost without exception these men are kindled with a sincere desire to restore human equilibrium, which has been so badly dislocated by this latest and most devastating of all wars. And we have noted too that management realizes full well that loyalty and efficiency on the part of employees must be earned; that the welfare of workers is an important yardstick for the measurement of true commercial success.

Our first obligation, when peace comes again to the world, is to prove by deeds rather than words, to the lads and lasses who went to war, that selling apples on street corners will never be countenanced or repeated in America—ever again!

Just Folks

JUST A THOUGHT
Just a second's thought like this:
"Tis more luck than merit I.
What the poor man suffers, miss,
Though the self-same death we die!"
And there'd be, beyond a doubt,
Less of the latter about.

Just the wondering: "Were I
At the bench, from day to day,
Or must sell what others buy,
Would I be as brave as they?"
And the sharp and cruel word
Not so often would be heard.

Just the recollection swift
All a gracious act will do;
How a cheering word can lift,
And the strength of man renew
And, beyond a doubt, we should
Closer come to brotherhood.

Today's Talk

RECONCILIATION
Charles Lamb once wrote to his friend Edward Moxon, his publisher, to whom he did a service by helping him in the selection of a wife. And this is what he advised him to do: "quarrel with his wife whenever he can, for she is 'beautiful in reconciliation.'"

Well, what a happier world this would be if more people, instead of holding a grudge, or unhappy feelings toward someone, would just decide to put things on a high level again by making everything "beautiful in reconciliation."

No matter how you figure it out, life is a very brief affair. Before you realize it, journey's end looms ahead! Bitterness in the mind and heart can do a deal of damage, in numberless ways, unless you clean it out and become reconciled with the one to whom you owe this debt. You know the old adage, "To err is human; to forgive is divine."

It means so much more to be loved for the friends that you have made than for the enemies that you leave around. You never know when the latter are going to sow seeds of evil, sure to plague you, in that garden of beauty that you own. There is no liability so heavy to carry around as the one caused by an unhappy quarrel, or the harboring of some unkind thought toward one who should be your friend.

Life is a give and take proposition, no matter what the circumstance. And if we make a practice of giving more than we take and of overlooking and becoming just a little blind when the unpleasant arrives, we are putting something precious aside in the bank of good will and of healthy, wholesome living.

Of course it takes courage and moral caliber to give in at times, to smooth things over, or to acknowledge an error, but it's the brave and sensible thing to do, anyway—and the wisest. We never know how "beautiful" it may be to become reconciled with the one toward whom we hold some bitterness—or perhaps merely a misunderstanding. Rainbows, you know, come after a storm. You never see them in fair weather.

Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject: "Standing Most Alone"

Great Excitement in Gettysburg
On Thursday, the great fire sale of fine clothing was inaugurated at 43 Main street and such crowds were never seen here before. All were rushing to buy clothing. The throng was so immense that all could not be waited on who wanted to buy, but the manager of the sale has employed extra salesmen and will now be able to wait on all the customers that come.

The sale will last but a few days longer and those wishing to buy clothing at less than cost of manufacture, will do well to call early, as everything is being rapidly sold. (Baltimore Clothing Company, Baltimore, Md.)

MINES SEIZURE HINGES ON REPLY TO ICKES' CALL

Washington, March 27 (AP) — Government seizure of the nation's soft coal mines appeared today to hinge largely on the answer miners and operators give to Secretary Ickes' call for a contract extension. The present working agreement expires Saturday night.

Ickes, acting as Solid Fuels Administrator, requested both miners and operators to continue at least until May 1 under terms of the present agreement, which he helped negotiate 18 months ago.

He proposed that any wage adjustments be retroactive.

May Be Separate Responses

The negotiating committees which have been meeting almost daily since March 1 to discuss John L. Lewis's 18 contract demands—with little, if any, progress—will determine today whether they can reply to Ickes' request affirmatively, and jointly. Otherwise they will draft separate responses stating their divergent opinions.

Secretary of Labor Perkins, in touch informally with both sides the past week or more, said she is ready to lend her aid, or that of the conciliation service, to the wage conferees in an effort to reach an agreement on the extension.

Lewis is known to demand that any wage adjustments be retroactive as a condition to extending the contract. The operators seek some assurance of price relief to take up the financial load they say retroactive increases would force them to bear.

This is something they will have to work out, Miss Perkins said, adding: "The answer must be to extend the contract."

The alternative would be sporadic work stoppages over the approaching Easter holidays (which in normal times would go unheeded) and government seizure.

Tomorrow the 400,000 soft coal miners ballot on whether to strike. Lewis will not necessarily call a strike, however. The vote is a formality required under the Smith-Connally War Labor disputes act—enacted in 1943 at the height of congressional reaction to the coal strikes of that year—because the mine leader said a dispute existed 30 days ago.

The Fellowship Of Prayer

Seekers: "We would see Jesus." John 12:21. Read John 12:20-25.

They were born seekers, these Greeks. They had sought the messages of nature's order, the truths the human mind may find, the splendors of art and the issues of destiny. They had found so much—and never enough.

We are all born seekers. "Man born of desire, cometh out of the night." Our restlessness will not let us rest. What we are and what our world has been, and is, are what we have sought, become real in our souls and our societies, and how sadly the issues of our quests condemn us; we have sought so much that we can neither serve nor save us—and at so sore a cost.

This Tuesday morning of this last week in Lent with the Cross so near and the Easter lights beyond it, we need to make this old petition our own—"We would see Jesus"; in the ageless wisdom of His teaching, in the compassion of His way with the stained and the sad; in His moral sovereignty in all the fulness of His redemptive love and power. Nothing else can complete all our unfinished quests nor save us from seeking what leaves us still unsatisfied.

Prayer: "We would see Jesus, for the shadows lengthen over the little landscape of our life . . . we would see Jesus, the great rock foundation whereon our feet were set by sovereign grace; nor life nor death with all their agitation can thence remove us if we see His face." Amen.

Keys To Pasture Management

Permanent pasture is the most important crop on the general farm. From it comes milk, butter, meat wool and farm power through the grazing of power animals. Yet, although pastures remain the foundation stone of successful agriculture, they are usually the most neglected phase of farming.

It is estimated that on an average American farm from four to five acres of permanent pasture are required to maintain one unit of livestock through a normal grazing season. On the other hand, in several smaller countries of the world, where intensive farming must be practiced, farmers often graze three and four units on one acre. This vast difference in pasture returns holds keys to pasture management which merit serious study.

First, pasture land is not a marginal part of the farm where livestock are turned out to glean as much hit-or-miss forage as possible. Pasture is a farm crop. The land where it grows should be considered as other crop land—fertilized, improved and protected. Of course, every pound of butter, gallon of milk, fleece of wool and carcass of meat, and even every unit of farm power removed from the pasture field carries off definite amounts of plant foods. And unless these nutrients are systematically replaced, pasture soil, like soils of other over-cropped land, will become deficient in plant foods. That is exactly what has occurred with most of the permanent pasture land in the United States. It explains why American farmers must use four to five acres of low quality pasture to maintain one unit of livestock through a short and often an unprofitable grazing season.

Need For Phosphorus
Next, pasture soils should be kept alkaline. Decadent pastures are not always caused by exhausted fertility. Often excessive acidity is present, resulting from over-grazing without any replacement of the lime (calcium) that has leached away in drainage water or been removed in grass eaten off.

Perhaps the most serious depletion occurs in terms of phosphorus. This element is susceptible to leaching as well as heavy removal in grasses consumed by animals. It is true that potash is often lacking and should be replaced, but the primary deficiency in most cases is found in the soil's phosphorus content. Nitrogen is needed, of course, but where clovers are included among pasture grasses, there will be a natural accretion of nitrogen from the air. But where the soil is strongly acid, much of the potash already in the soil may remain unavailable to the growing plants and the nitrogen-gathering processes of legume plants may be restricted.

Therefore, two main methods of pasture rejuvenation are suggested: (1) Apply lime to restore alkalinity and commercial fertilizer to supply depleted nutrients; (2) Rotate livestock on permanent pastures. The last mentioned practice consists of dividing the field into three or four plots by temporary fences and rotating animals from one plot to another so that pasture grasses in each plot grazed can recover top growth before they are grazed again. This sound and practical phase of management usually doubles and trebles the carrying capacity of ordinary permanent pasture land.

The editor will be glad to answer all questions readers wish to ask on this broad and important subject, also to furnish them with free copies of our simplified pasture rejuvenation directions. Merely enclose a 3-cent stamp with letter to cover reply postage.

How To Rejuvenate Pastures
Farmers and other interested readers who have not already obtained a copy of our pasture treatment guide or who wish copies mailed to friends or relatives should write for it at once. Merely enclose a 3-cent stamp to cover postage. This outlines a simple but practicable program for restoring tired pastures to maximum productive vigor. Every farmer should have a copy at hand. Of course, the editor will gladly discuss pasture problems with readers who write him and answer all related questions.

Flashes Of Life

EARLY START

Polson, Mont. (AP)—Eugene Rue, saying he and his two sisters were engaged in engineering research, recently wrote a California airplane factory requesting plans of the new Douglas jet-propelled warplane.

The company regretted it could not furnish complete plans, but returned a set of colored pictures, hoping that they would be of benefit to the engineers.

Master Eugene, eldest of the researching Rue's is 10.

PAYMENT DEFERRED. Omaha, Neb. (AP)—Don B. Woodyard, manager of a department store, received an unsigned letter containing two $1 bills. The note read:

"The enclosed cash is for a play-suit. The clerks were busy."

IN THE DOG HOUSE

Olympic, Wash. (AP)—Five-year-old David Vaughan disappeared after being punished for a bit of childish mischief. An all-night search by relatives and police failed to locate him but he was found next morning—in a neighbor's doghouse.

AND THAT'S WHY

Boise, Idaho (AP)—The ration board received this answer from an applicant for extra gasoline who had been asked why he couldn't ride the bus:

"I am a bus driver. I work the split shift. I get the first bus out in the morning and take the last one in at night. If you still can tell me how I can ride the buses to and from the depot I want to know."

He got the extra gas.

PRIZED GEM

Great Falls, Mont. (AP)—Night shifters at the nearby smelter were unloading a carload of zinc concentrates from Australia.

Suddenly, all hands stared in astonishment. There, unharmed by the long journey, glistened—not a bar of gold, not a batch of gems, but—

A full pint of Scotch whiskey, distilled in Perth, Scotland.

Chicago, (AP)—Joseph Dwyer and Harry Stevens experimented with some new juttu-holds. Simultaneously each broke the other's right leg.

New Oxford

New Oxford—Harold F. Grotz, USN, was on leave with his family during the week.

The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. John Duttera has been named Craig Wendell.

The N.C.C.W. of St. Mary's Catholic church conducted its regular meeting during the week.

James Small remains quite ill at his home. His son, Robert, who has been in a serious condition, has been taken to the Hanover hospital.

Albert Smith, who recently underwent an operation at the Hanover hospital, is now able to leave his home.

Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Smith entertained their son, Richard, USN, Newport, R. I., during the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. David Ford, near here, announce the birth of a daughter at the Hanover hospital early this week.

Dorothy is the name chosen for the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard L. Myers, East Berlin. Mrs.

Williams Kayoes
 Lay In 3rd Round
 Philadelphia, March 27 (AP)—Lightweight contender Iko Williams, only a blurred carbon copy of his former self, uncorked a single, murderous punch last night—and with it cleared his path to an NBA championship fight.
 The Trenton negro kayoed swashbuckling Dorsey Lay of Philadelphia in 246 of the third round of a scheduled ten-round, and thus sealed his date to meet National Boxing association titlist Juan Zurita in Mexico City April 18. If Lay had won, the match would have been off.
 Williams, obviously short of condition, eked out a first-round decision by felling his opponent for a three-count. But Lay won the second with a torrent of rights and crosses, and started the third with the same tactics. Williams stopped him with one blow. He went down for nine, came up groggy, took another right to the jaw, and plopped again for ten.

Canada now ranks second among the gold-producing countries of the world.

GALAN DECIDES TO REPORT TO DODGERS' CAMP

New York, March 27 (AP)—Angie Galan, star all-around player, has decided to leave his California butcher shop to perform again for the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Branch Rickey, president of the Dodgers, announced today that he telephoned to Galan in Berkeley, Calif., from the Dodgers' camp at Bear Mountain.
 "Galan told me that he is so busy in his butcher shop that he would be unable to leave until April 2," Rickey said. "I asked him if he would be willing to play first base if Manager Leo Durocher assigned him to that position. He said he would report ready and willing to play first base in 154 games. He also informed me that he has been working out with the San Francisco club two hours a day so he should be well advanced in training when he reports."

Other training camp items:
Gerheuser Drills
 Philadelphia Phillies—Southpaw Al Gerheuser remained a holdout, but worked out while awaiting invitation to salary conference.
 Philadelphia A's—Sid Gordon, former Giant, hit two homers to help Curtis Bay Coast Guard crush Athletics, 19-8.
 Boston Red Sox—Manager Joe Cronin is ready to play shortstop unless Skeeter Newsome reports.

Boston Braves—Nat Andrews expected to pitch today's exhibition game against Washington.
 Cleveland Indians—Steve Grodek's fast ball was hopping in three innings he pitched in practice game. Yielded no hits.
 Chicago White Sox—First of four holdout pitchers to sign contract, Joe Haynes reported to Terre Haute, Ind. camp.

Chicago Cubs—Manager Charley Grimm said Slugger Bill Nicholson will report at least by opening day.
Hitting Hard
 Pittsburgh Pirates—Johnny Barrett, Babe Dahlgren, Jim Russell and Tommy O'Brien all hit ball out of park in batting practice.
 St. Louis Browns—Soggy field again forced club indoors for long routine workout.

Cincinnati Reds—Chucho Ramos departed by plane from Caracas en route to training camp at Bloomington. Pitcher Elmer Riddle said he would stay on job at Columbus, Ga.
 New York Giants—Manager Mel Ott cut lunch to one sandwich each after which team wallowed in Bainbridge Navy, 9-2, with Ernie Lombardi hitting homer with bases loaded.

New York Yankees—Infielder Oscar Grimes left Atlantic City camp for New York where he will take pre-induction exam. Nick Etten, Yankee first baseman who has been working in a Chicago war plant, is expected to leave today for the training camp.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, March 27 (AP)—It may seem incredible to folks who have been driven to distraction keeping track of basketball scores, but they're actually trying to make the game faster.

When officials were given their chance to speak their piece at yesterday's Basketball Writers' meeting, Elwood Geiges talked about the necessity of "keeping the game rolling" and Dave Walsh proposed a rule change that would save a few seconds on out of bounds plays. . . . In addition, the rules committee is seriously considering trying to correct an "abuse" of the free substitution rule which lets a team stall in the back court for nine seconds, call time out and then escape a penalty by inserting a substitute within 30 seconds. Strangely, there wasn't any squawking about stopping the clock by frequent substitutions late in the game or freezing the ball in the last few minutes. Those tactics were prominent in Saturday's eastern N.C.A.A. final but all hands seemed to figure that NYU's Howard Cann had out-generated Ohio State's Ole Olsen by substituting while Ole didn't freeze.

DEMOTED

When the Giants played an exhibition at the Bainbridge Naval Training Center the other day, Frank Mediaville, rookie first base candidate, took exception to one of Umpire Bill Stewart's decisions in rather hairy-chested language. . . . Bill took off his mask, looked sternly at the youngster and said: "Young man, I don't even allow major league ball player to talk to me like that."

SPORTS BEFORE YOUR EYES

The No. 1 candidate to become athletic director at Northwestern when Tug Wilson takes over as Big Ten commissioner May 1 is Ted Payeur. . . . Fred Walters, catcher up with the Red Sox from Louisville, once became so disgusted with kicking around the minors that he quit baseball and joined the F.B.I. The new twist on an old line is that the Red Sox always get their man. . . . Walt Kennedy, Notre Dame publicist, is taking a vacation "to catch his breath from the breeze made by coaches coming and going."

DePaul Quint Takes Invitation Title

New York, March 27 (AP)—DePaul's Demons from Chicago finally licked their New York basketball tournament jinx.

Coach Ray Meyer's quintet from the Windy City snared the National Invitation title by crushing Bowling Green, 71 to 54, in last night's final before 18,166 at Madison Square Garden.
 Last year the Demons reached the final, but lost to St. John's in an upset. Two years ago Georgetown whipped them in the eastern NCAA competition.

Tonight New York university meets the Oklahoma Aggies for the NCAA championship. The winner meets DePaul for the mythical national title on Thursday.

SPORT SHORTS

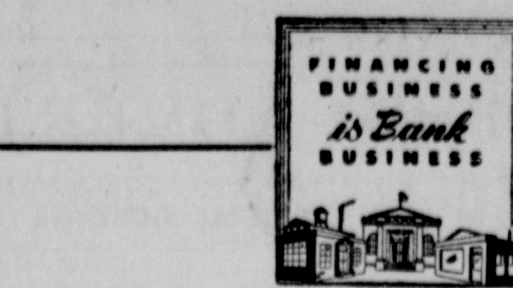

New York, March 27 (AP)—Lightweight boxer Bobby Ruffin has changed his mind about retiring. He has signed to meet Willie Joyce, of Gary, Ind., in a 12-round bout at Madison Square Garden on May 25. Joyce decisively outpointed Ike Williams in their recent 10-rounder at the Garden.

Winnipeg, March 27 (AP)—Max Carey, former National league baseball star, said today he was happier in his present job than at anytime during his diamond career with Pittsburgh and Brooklyn. He is president of the American Girls' Professional Softball league.

Philadelphia, March 27 (AP)—Willie Hoppe, one-time "boy wonder" of billiards, added another record to his string last night. The 57-year-old cue master defeated Welker Cochran, world three cushion champion, 60-35, in 23 innings, thereby equalling Cochran's own inning record for 60 points. Cochran had set the mark only two weeks ago against Hoppe in New York. The victory boosted Willie's lead to 46 points—952 to 906—in the Hoppe-Cochran transcontinental world championship tourney. Hoppe won the afternoon block yesterday, 60-55.

Fights Last Night

(By The Associated Press)
Philadelphia—Ike Williams, 134, Trenton, N. J., knocked out Dorsey Lay, 136, Philadelphia, 3. Freddy Dawson, 136½, Chicago TKO Ernie Petrone, 140, Philadelphia, W.
Chicago—Jake LaMotta, 157½, New York, knocked out George "Sugar" Costner, 151½, Cincinnati, 6. Joey LaMotta, 152, New York, knocked out Al Jackson, 148, Chicago, 1.
New York—The Cocoa Kid (Louis Hardwick) 158½, New Haven, outpointed Holman Williams, 157, Chicago, 10.
Pittsburgh—Ossie "Bulldog" Harris, 161, Pittsburgh, outpointed Cowboy Reuben Shank, 153, Denver, 10. Cliff Beckett, 156, Toronto, knocked out Johnny Marrio, 151, Cambridge, Mass., 1.
